"As we go through the faster pace of today, it's good to be reminded of some of the fundamentals on how to relate to our children. This class is a good reminder. It's also in a form that can be summarized in easy to understand concepts. Amazing as it may seem, even after only a few weeks, I can already see results. Relating to children's feelings has actually produced the most significant change. Even though I've already taken several other parenting classes, this one had much to offer."
